Summary: Sad little poem about Master Chief

A Shattered Life

I own nothing! Please no flamers

A Shattered Life

The moment you stole me, the moment I shot a gun, my future was shattered

The first time I killed someone with a gun my heart was shattered

The moment I was put into this war was the moment where my future was shattered

I will never get a real job, I will never know what love is, I will never know true happiness and even if this war ends I know another will start and you'll call me to fight once again and I will because it's the only thing I know

And if war by some miracle ends, where does that leave me? It leaves me with nothing

Nothing but a shattered life.

I felt sad so I wrote a sad poem; I kinda wonder though what will master chief do when the war is over? PLEASE REVIEW!
